

Combatting Illegal Immigration

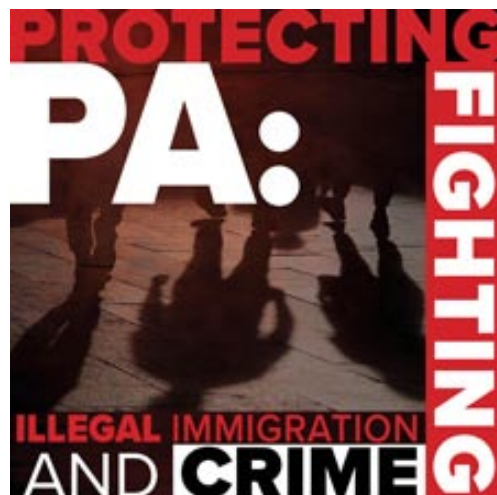

By Rep. Ann Flood

PEN ARGYL - In the wake of the Biden administration's continued failure to secure the nation's southern border, House Republicans this week highlighted legislation to combat illegal immigration and its impacts on the Commonwealth.

House Bill 2214 would require a minimum bail of $1 million be set in cases of assault of a law enforcement officer, which was introduced in response to the attack on New York Police Department officers by a gang of illegal immigrants earlier this year.

House Bill 1840 would prohibit counties and municipalities from designating themselves as sanctuaries for illegal immigrants, while House Resolution 294 calls on Congress and federal agencies to address ghost flights.

An additional measure, not yet introduced, would both crack down on squatters and require local cooperation with U.S. Immigration and Customs Enforcement should a squatter be in the country illegally.

Hearings Focus on Job-Creating Tax Reform

By Rep. Ann Flood

PEN ARGYL - Continuing our commitment to grow the state's economy, the House Republican Policy Committee held a series of hearings to discuss tax reform policies that would boost job creation and opportunity here.

Testifiers from the Pennsylvania Chamber of Business and Industry, National Federation of Independent Business, and regional economic development officials advocated for a reduction in the state's Corporate Net Income Tax, which is the second highest in the nation, and a removal of caps on the Net Operating Loss (NOL) Carryforward deduction. Pennsylvania is one of just two states that cap NOL deductions.

Testifiers agreed these changes would make the Commonwealth more competitive with other states, which would help retain and grow existing businesses, as well as attract new ones.

Hearings were held in Columbia, Northampton and Lancaster counties. Watch the hearings here.
