Highlighting the Little League World Series

By State Rep. Ann Flood

Last week, I had the incredible opportunity to attend the Little League World Series in South Williamsport as part of a special event hosted by the House Tourism, Recreation and Economic Development Committee.

The day began with a luncheon and roundtable discussion featuring Pat Wilson, president of Little League International; Tom Lee, ambassador to Taiwan; U.S. Rep. Dan Meuser; and other local elected officials. We discussed the economic and community impact of this world-renowned event. The luncheon and discussion brought together a total of 24 Pennsylvania state representatives. Afterward, we toured the Little League complex and enjoyed one of the tournament games.

For more than seven decades, the Little League World Series has brought together young athletes from around the globe in the spirit of teamwork, perseverance and sportsmanship while drawing tens of thousands of visitors to Pennsylvania and generating significant revenue for the region. It stands as a shining example of how youth sports can unite communities and inspire the next generation!
