PA Bald Eagle Cam Livestreams America's Living Symbols

By Senator Rosemary Brown

The Pennsylvania Game Commission livestream of a bald eagle nest in Codorus State Park in York County offers viewers an incredible look at a pair of eagles and their three eggs.

The nest has never seen three eggs in one season since the webcam first started in January 2015. The eggs were laid in early March and typically take around 35 days to hatch, so viewers could see eaglets emerging in the coming days.

Forty years ago, Pennsylvania had only three bald eagle nests left in the entire state before the birds were brought back. We're now home to more than 300 nests. The livestream is run through a Game Commission partnership with Comcast Business, HDOnTap and local property owners.
