The 1779 Sullivan Expedition, or Sullivan's March, was a major Revolutionary War campaign ordered by George Washington to devastate Iroquois (Haudenosaunee) territory in Pennsylvania and New York. Led by Maj. Gen. John Sullivan, it destroyed over 40 villages and agricultural supplies to end loyalist/Indian raids, significantly impacting Pennsylvania's Susquehanna Valley.

Paul Miller's Law Goes into Full Effect Today, June 5th

By Senator Rosemary Brown

Sen. Rosemary Brown hugs Eileen Miller, the mother of Paul Miller Jr., who was tragically killed in 2010 by a distracted driver. They are embracing in the Governor's office following the signing of Paul Miller's Law.

Beginning today June 5th, Pennsylvania's Paul Miller's Law is now fully enforceable, marking an important step forward in our efforts to reduce distracted driving and save lives.

The law is named in honor of Paul Miller Jr., who was tragically killed in 2010 by a distracted driver. In the wake of that unimaginable loss, Paul's mother, Eileen Miller, made a promise to her son that she would work to change the law and prevent other families from experiencing the same heartbreak. For more than a decade, she turned grief into advocacy, becoming one of Pennsylvania's strongest voices for highway safety.

As the prime sponsor of this legislation, I worked alongside Eileen Miller and the Miller family for years to honor Paul Miller Jr.'s memory and help prevent other families from experiencing a similar tragedy. During the past year, law enforcement focused on educating drivers about the new law through written warnings. Now, violations of the hands-free law may result in fines and penalties.

Paul Miller's Law prohibits the use of handheld mobile devices while driving, including when stopped at a traffic light or in traffic. Drivers may still use hands-free technology and exceptions exist for emergencies.

This law is not meant to hard drivers. It is meant to protect drivers and passengers on our roadways and change behaviors. Pennsylvanian to put their phone down, stay focused on the road, and do their part to make our highways safer for everyone.

For more information about Paul Miller's Law, motorists can visit the Pennsylvania Department of Transportation's distracted driving resource page.

We remember the sacrifice of the brave American and Allied soldiers who stormed the beaches of Normandy on D-Day, June 6th, 1944

By Senator Rosemary Brown

Their extraordinary bravery changed the course of history and helped secure freedom for future generations. We honor those who made the ultimate sacrifice and express our deepest gratitude to the veterans who served our nation with pride.

May we always uphold their legacy and never take the freedoms they fought for granted.
