It's Hunger Action Month!

By CALV

Hunger Action Month, observed in September each year, is an annual reminder that it takes an entire community working together to fight hunger and ensure all our neighbors have access to nutritious food.

Over the summer, food pantries across our six-county service region saw a significant increase in demand, with more families turning to them, many for the first time, for support. As the cost of everyday necessities continues to rise and cuts to the Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program (SNAP) take effect, more households are struggling to make ends meet.

At Second Harvest Food Bank, our shelves are being depleted as we work to meet the growing needs of our neighbors. This Hunger Action Month, we invite our supporters to take action by advocating for increased access to food, volunteering at a food pantry or the food bank, or making a financial contribution to support hunger-relief efforts.

No matter how you choose to get involved, you are helping your neighbors feed their families with dignity and hope.
