

Keeping Kids Safe in the Car

By Rep. Ann Flood

SLATE BELT - Parents and caregivers are reminded to ensure children are correctly buckled in the right seats for their age and size.

State law requires children up to age 2 to be secured in a rear-facing car seat, while children under the age of 4 must be restrained in an approved child safety seat. Children must ride in a booster seat until their eighth birthday. Parents are also reminded that due to potential dangers associated with air bag deployment, children age 12 and younger should always ride buckled in a vehicle's back seat.

The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA) recommends keeping a child in a car seat for as long as possible, provided the child fits within the manufacturer's height and weight requirements.
